Frequency of chronic diseases (e.g., diabetes, hypertension) in a population	People begin to realize that dying from preventable or manageable chronic disease should not be the status quo.
The impact of weather events (e.g., extreme heat, flooding) on community health	Implementing climate resilience policies targeting vulnerable populations
Quality and funding of public schools in different neighborhoods	Reforming school funding formulas to allocate more resources to underfunded districts

Access to high-speed internet and digital resources	Expanding broadband infrastructure in underserved communities
Access to mental health services in local clinics	Clinics adopt walk-in office hours and peer support models to reduce barriers to mental health care.
Disparities in maternal and infant health outcomes	Expanding Medicaid coverage for doulas and midwives to improve maternal care

Air and water quality	Strengthening environmental regulations to reduce industrial pollution in marginalized areas
High rates of violent crime and community safety concerns	Implementation of a citizen taskforce that works alongside police and local government to make decisions around local safety priorities.
Opportunities for employment and financial security	Raising the minimum wage and ensuring paid leave policies

Access to affordable healthcare and insurance coverage	Expanding Medicaid eligibility and removing work requirements
Presence of green spaces and recreational areas	Increasing public investment in parks and community outdoor spaces in low-income areas
Availability of quality early childhood education programs	Implementing universal pre-K policies and increasing early childhood education funding

Access to safe and affordable housing	Implementing inclusionary zoning policies to increase affordable housing availability
Availability of healthy food options in a neighborhood	Collaboration formed between local farmers, non-profits, and corner stores to supply healthy food to corner stores.
Quality of public transportation options.	Expanding public transit routes to improve access to jobs and healthcare